Read this story carefully

My best friend, Jack, is really genius. He is just twelve years old. When he moved to a new neighbourhood in Chicago, everybody kept staring at him and teasing him because of his disability. Jack has no legs, but still he can move from a place to another using his hands. He looks a bit weird, though. He wears baggy clothes and his facial features are just funny. One day, there was a school competition about music, and he immediately got in. In the beginning, the jury was not sure about his performance, but it was outstanding. He sang well and he got the first prize. Not only that but he also challenged all his classmates to solve mathematical equations without a calculator. The jury couldn't stop applauding him. Also, he did some acrobatic dances that a normal person can't do. Ever since, all the school staff and pupils appreciate his talents and believe that Jack is really a talented boy.
